Read FAQ.

Sacred Heart Prep junior Harrison Enright, who scored three goals in a 19-7 victory over Los Altos in the Central Coast Section Division II championship match and helped the Gators compile a 25-4 record this season, has been named Player of the Year on the boys' All-CCS water polo team.

Enright was instrumental in helping the Gators win their second straight Division II title with his scoring and defense. He was one of three SHP players named to the combined (Division I and II) team and one of eight Gators named to the Division II squad.

Senior goalie Will Runkel and Stanford-bound Michael Holloway joined Enright on the All-CCS combined team.

Sacred Heart Prep standouts head All-CCS water polo teams

Sacred Heart Prep seniors Harrison Enright and Caitlin Stuewe earned top honors on their respective teams to highlight the 2013 All-Central Coast Section boys and girls water polo teams.

Enright was ranked No. 1 for all the boys while Stuewe was named Player of the Year in Division II. Both players led the Gators to CCS Division II titles this past season.

The teams were selected by a panel of water polo coaches.

Hey it is great of you to prop of SHP, all of those players are outstanding no doubt. However, their were in fact Boys CCS D1 and D2 teams - you completely ignored (or did you just miss it) similar to the list you have for the girls. Maybe the boys D1/D2 teams and the rest just weren't worth printing? Nice job.

I have to agree with the above comment. Why don't you publish the entire lists of players? Awful, misleading, and shoddy.

If I were a betting man, I would say the Weekly printed the information that they were given.

This is typical of HS sports, especially boys water polo. Very few coaches/ADs have the awareness or aptitude to do things that many business oriented people/parents do on a daily basis.

Just wondered why the all-league water polo honorees were not printed? Didn't see PAL, WCAL or SCAL in either girls or boys published this year? And no mention of All Star teams or game coverage.

It would be nice if CCS actually posted these lists on their web site.
It would be nice if all the individual leagues posted their league listings on their web sites. Not all leagues do this.

The Weekly did not receive the entire D-1 and D-2 boys' teams from any of the coaches. Jon Burke of SHP provided the entire teams for the girls. The All-SCVAL teams have not arrived, even though three local coaches (including the league rep, Johnny Bega of Los Altos) have been contacted. The All-WCAL teams will be next online. The All-PAL teams were online weeks ago. Should space permit, all of the boys and girls all-league teams will be in print.

Actually, just got the PAL teams. They, along with the all-WCAL teams, will be online by Friday (Dec. 20). As for the boys all-CCS, it is possible they only selected two teams and not by division, as the team came from the Chair of the Coaches Association, Menlo's Jack Bowen.

Keith, not to beat this to death (which it has been now), I have seen the list(s) for the CCS D1 and D2 boys teams. Hard to imaging that Jack Bowen doesn't have it (or any of the other coaches) - since a number of their players are on that list. You would think they (the coaches) would have a little more interest in giving their players some props for the great year they all had.....

Just to make sure everyone understands process:

Typically each league (per sport) has a set of By-Laws that determines how an all-league team is determined. More often than not, the all-league teams are seeded by the actual league finish for each school. For example, if Alpha HS finished first in their league, Alpha would receive (approximately) 4 automatic spots on the All-League list. Then it goes from there in terms of second place, third to perhaps fourth place. After that there is usually 1-3 "wild card" spots where coaches can nominate/vote other athletes onto the all-league list.

The leagues typically hold their all-league selection meeting the week after their championship tournaments have taken place. Usually the chair of each gender's coaching group sends out the official results to the media. Each school is responsible for providing (if any) trophy or plaque to the athletes. The leagues do not do this.

As for All-CCS, please note that there is no formal relationship/tie-in to CIF-CCS. Period. The WP coaches have "an association" but there is no By-Laws or rules that they necessarily follow when it comes to All-CCS selections. The meeting takes place after the CCS championship tournament has taken place. Coaches nominate their own athletes. Most coaches are very good at acknowledging talent from the schools other than their own. And certainly some sway is given to those athletes who made first-team all-league. But just because an athlete from Alpha HS made first-team in his/her league, doesn't necessarily translate to first team CCS...most likely get on the team (first, second, honorable mention), but no guarantees. And there are no automatic placements onto the CCS team based upon team finishes in the championships.

The coaches' "association" is responsible for sending results out to the media. CIF-CCS has nothing to do with the dissemination of this information. Each school is responsible for providing All-CCS trophies/plaques - CIF-CCS does not do this. CCS only provides trophies and medals at the championship tournaments.

All-America is somewhat of a "insider" process. First, your coach must be a dues paying and current member of the association. If not, your athletes cannot be nominated, no matter how great they are. Second, your coach has to be the one to nominate the players and do it on time. So no nomination or late nomination...and the your athlete will not get on the potential list. Unfortunately I don't know how it goes from there - but typically if your kid is not on the CIF-CCS team, it is extremely unlikely that he/she will be get All-America status.

Hope this helps

@ parent. Rude, impolite and arrogant.

If the SCVAL coach doesn't send the info, then Keith Peters cannot post it.

And before anyone goes about insulting the SCVAL coach, he is also the Associate Head Coach for the San Jose State women's team. And unfortunately the head coach (Lou Tully) suddenly passed away this past week.

Feel free to tell him "that's his job" ...
